

NATIONAL PERSONAL TRAINING INSTITUTE

How We're Reopening

On behalf of the entire team at NPTI, we look forward to welcoming back our students on June 1st. The past several months have been unlike anything we've ever experienced, and we've been working hard to evolve so we can continue to be the premier educational facility for Personal Trainers worldwide. Part of that has meant serving our students in new ways, whether that's online or now through socially distanced classrooms and onsite gym facilities.

It really can't be said enough—your health, and the health of our NPTI team, are our priority. And every decision we make is through that lens. We wanted to be sure the approach we were taking to reopen our physical school locations was thoughtful, and that we created an educational environment that's safe for everyone. Based on these decisions we delayed the opening of our physical school locations until June 1st. This has allowed us to accomplish the safety measures we believe were necessary.

We've made some updates to our physical school locations in Orlando and Tampa to help keep everyone healthy. Some of those updates include:

- taking steps to allow for social distancing, including limiting the number of students in each class;
- increasing cleaning and sanitization;
- modifying the gym to allow for social distancing and adequate spacing;
- conducting health screenings for our employees;
- providing personal hand sanitizers and face coverings for employees and customers- if desired;
- continuing to offer classes online throughout the summer to allow students to complete their education remotely.

We look forward to seeing you back in our classrooms soon.

In Good Health,
